

Life is better with New Image Hair Clinic

As a woman, hair plays an important role in our lives. It's not just a vanity issue, its self-image, its self-worth, and its how we are perceived in public. It's more than just a hair thing.

Back in 1985, I began to see my hair thinning and it was getting progressively worse as the years went by. I changed my hair color to hide my shiny scalp, so it wasn't obvious that my hair was thin and fine. This didn't change the fact that I was self-conscious about my appearance. My thinning hair had altered my lifestyle. A bad hair day was not an uncommon thing- it was almost a daily occurrence. I didn't wear hats in the winter, didn't shop for clothes because I knew I had to try them on. Why? Because once I styled my hair in the morning, it was done for the day. I didn't want to make an already bad hair day worse. Wind, rain, cold, heat, sun - these were my hair enemies! These weren't my only obstacles, there were more. People treated me differently - they didn't talk to my face and look me in the eyes, they were more focused on my shiny scalp. In restaurants, seating was a challenge. I didn't want to sit under a direct light because it was as though a spotlight was shining on my head. Having my photo taken was out of the question, as the camera flash accentuated my dreadful issue. Enough!

In late 2002, while vacationing with my family, one more bad hair day was my last straw! I wanted to do something about it. I was very emphatic that "I want a hair transplant"! (Thinking that was the answer). I had been considering different options for some time. I tried Rogaine, hair products to thicken the hair and make hair fuller, products too numerous to mention and none of them worked. I didn't know where to turn and what options were available to me. I searched the Internet. I watched numerous infomercials regarding hair transplants, hair grafts, and hair products –again; I still didn't know where to turn. And, a wig was out of the question!

I knew I had to do something now, in 2002. My daughter was graduating from college and getting married. There would be dozens of photos taken and I couldn't bear the thought of ruining all of those pictures. During a New Image infomercial, I decided to see what they could tell me. I knew in my heart that they were going to be the answer! I called and made an appointment for my consultation. I nervously walked through the door and my heart was pounding, but I knew this was right. Everyone made me feel at ease. From the receptionist to my stylist and everyone in between, they are all wonderful and caring individuals. They are extremely compassionate and empathetic to my situation. They need to know how much they are valued. They listen and they care, New Image has made an impact on my life. They have enhanced my life. No longer do I feel self-conscious. I can go to a restaurant, try on clothes, and have my picture taken, now with confidence! My hair is WONDERFUL! It's my natural color and is no longer an obstacle for me. I love it and there are no more bad hair days for me!

I'm worth it!

Thanks New Image
